The board took this step because it recognized that the United States would soon be confronting the problem of rehabilitating the disabled soldiers and sailors resulting from the great war. As the vocational reeducation of these men has come to be a vital part of their rehabilitation, it is believed that the study here presented may be of service in the discharge of our great obligation as a people to those injured in the national defense. The experience of our allies in vocational rehabilitation has been collated and analyzed. The lessons gained by them are presented for the guidance of all those interested in the problem in our own country. Certain...
