Carolina Hurricane

By Shannon Dauphin

Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 155 pages. A love off limits. A storm they cant fight. Haunted. Handsome. Alone. Following a bitter divorce, professor Jordan Eversole has thrown himself into his teaching and into restoring the rambling old Carolina plantation house in which he lives. Independent. Lovely. Determined. At twenty-one years of age, Sweetwater College student, Amanda Whitmore, is an old soul with a capacity for insight and devotion far beyond her years. The two are about to collide. Caught together in the plantation house by a category four hurricane, Amanda and Jordan fight the winds and their growing love for one another, caught by a storm that seems destined to push them together no matter the cost. Reviews and Other Information: Theres a lot going on beneath the surface of this novel. Essentially, its a story about freedom and choice. . . Its also about expectation. The May-December relationship isnt one they leap into without due thought, but judgement from the people around them is quick to come. Ms Dauphin handles these issues with a deft touch, making the events that follow seem believable. Theres a comforting quality about the story. Jordan and Amanda seem like real people, their actions...
