Excerpt: . boys who pretended to listen to her every Sunday, took her problem to her pastor. It was as a result of this conference that a proposition was made to the school to award a deportment banner each Sunday to the class which-- in the judgment of the officers--most deserved it. The proposition was enthusiastically endorsed. The class of troublesome boys received the award on the second Sunday. And, ever since, the teacher has had an orderly class. The writer once heard a pastor tell of messages of a different character given to him by some of his teachers. Before nearly every communion service, he said, I can expect one, two, three, or more, teachers, to come to me saying, I wish you would speak to M--in my class. I think he has about decided to unite with, the church. Or, J--has given his heart...
